Letter from Redpath!

ON KANSAS AFFAIRS!

We publish the following letter to the Chicago Tribune, from James Redpath, dated—

LAWRENCE, K. T., June 4, 1858.

Civil war is raging in this Territory. Three engagements have been fought between the People and the invaders of Kansas. Twenty-one men have been killed.

The first engagement came off on Thursday night. A company of seventy men—Missourians, South Carolinians and Alabamians; after scouring round the country all day, driving off and plundering the Northern emigrants, were surprised and attacked by a party of Free State boys, commanded by a young printer, formerly from Iowa, who fired upon them as they were passing a wood, and shot six and mortally wounded two of them. As soon as their companions fell, the invaders fled in great disorder.—Only one volley was fired.

The Free State company numbered twenty-one men. They took some prisoners, two wagon loads of provisions, ammunition and arms, two or three horses, and four splendid mules. They liberated the prisoners, after disarming them. No Free State man was killed or wounded.

The scene of this exploit is the Neosho Valley. It is rumored that the same company, on the following day, attacked another party of invaders in the same vicinity; and, after several rounds between them, killed four Missourians, without any loss on the part of the Free State men.

News has just reached us that a pitched battle on the prairie will come off to-day, at Hickory Point. In a skirmish last night, four of the invaders were killed, and one of the squatters dangerously wounded.

The invaders numbered one hundred and twenty men. Fifty-two of our boys are keeping them at bay until they are reinforced. A courier has just arrived in Lawrence, with a call for fifty men.

A guerrilla party attacked Mr. Walker's house, and one, who was wounded, has since expired.

Guerrilla parties are scouring the country in all directions, plundering, driving off the Northern emigrants, killing their cattle and burning down their houses.

The Northern men have resolved to retaliate. An armed company, called the Northern Retaliators, has been organized in Lawrence, and will start in a day or two, and never disband until every Missourian, who is not an actual settler, and every member of Buford's organized gang of highway robbers, are driven into Missouri, or out of this Territory.

The United States troops have orders from Gov. Shannon to disband the guerrilla parties, but as the robbers can easily keep out of the way, this movement can afford no protection to the Northern settlers.

Of Gov. Shannon I shall have something to say before my letter is signed. With a Northern traitor in the White House, and a Northern out at Leecompton—with Harney at the head of the Territorial Army, and Leecompton on the Judicial Bench—the Northern men have no hope for justice, but in their own resolution and courage, and from the North. If the North is the friend of Kansas, now is the time to prove it.

A GUERRILLA PARTY SURPRISED. On Thursday afternoon, a young man named Guilford, was arrested by a guerrilla party of twelve men, on the highway between Topeka and Lawrence. They took him down to the woods, threatened him, and compelled him to swear that he would never vote a Free State ticket, or bear arms in defense of the Free State party.

They told him they were Georgians; had lived by guerrilla warfare for ten years; and intended to guerrilla every d—abolitionist out of the Territory. To-night, said one of them, we mean to burn down Mr. Walker's house.

Mr. Walker lives on his claim between Topeka and Lawrence. He is a Northern man. When Guilford was liberated, he sent warning to Walker.

It happened that Col. Topliffe was at Walker's house. He determined to remain all night, and give the guerrilla party a suitable reception.

A company of men were summoned to defend the house. Half a dozen of them were stationed inside; and ten or eleven, under Col. Topliffe, concealed themselves in the vicinity.

About eleven o'clock—the night was dark—twelve men rode up to the house, dismounted, and were hitching their horses to the fence, when a fire was suddenly opened upon them by the party inside.

One horse was shot through the head, and fell down dead. The men inside rushed out, and received a volley from the guerrilla, who had already mounted.

The guerrilla were galloping away at full speed, when the men under Topliffe sprang up before them and fired. Their volley was returned, but not one of the squatters, of either party, was killed or wounded.

Topliffe seized the bride of a horse as it was galloping past him. The fellow who rode it, begged like a trooper for his life.

"Oh don't kill me, don't—I was not with these men—I—I was traveling."

"Well," said Topliffe, "it's time you took a rest; if you traveled at this rate, I should think your horses would be tired."

Another squatter seized another member of the guerrilla, and both of them were compelled to dismount.

One of them was a Deputy United States Marshal; the other a Constable under the Territorial Government. Their names are Wauford and Radcliffe.

They pretended at first that they merely wanted to ascertain what o'clock it was, and were going to a ball.

Both of these gave contradictory accounts of themselves.

Next morning, Wauford confessed the truth. He said they had met him on the way, and asked him to accompany them. They told him that they were going to burn down Walker's house, but would offer no violence to his wife or family. If they caught Walker, they said, they would hang him.

He is a native of New York, and had sometimes been accused of Northern proclivities.—Fearing, he said, to confirm these suspicions by refusing to go with them, he had consented to accompany the party.

Next morning, the party who had assembled to protect Mr. Walker, on leaving the house, found one United States carbine, one revolver, four bowie knives, two saddles, a pair of spurs and a coat tail with a flask of whiskey in it, lying on the road along which the guerrilla had so suddenly retreated.

None of the guerrilla party were Georgians. Did Walker and his friends do wrong in defending the house?

Answer, and then read—but not till you reply. Next day, Gov. Shannon, with a company of United States troops, came down to Mr. Walker's house to arrest him. Writ had been taken out against every man who was known to be in the party who defended the house.

Among them was Judge J. A. Wakefield—a man of unblemished character, and an old soldier—but a Free State man, and an emigrant from a Northern State.

They searched every house in the neighborhood for arms, and were employed all day—Gov. Shannon assisting with his own hands—in feeling mattresses, peeping into closets, emptying trunks, looking under beds and prying in lofts for ammunition and rifles. Whenever they found a Sharpe's rifle they took it. In the house we would call this action burglary and robbery; but it has a different name at Leecompton, and in the "law and order" counties of Missouri.

Shannon was so drunk when he was acting as Chief of this smelling Military Possession—that he staggered, caught hold of furniture to steady himself, and used language which even he would have been shocked at in his sober moments.

He asked Mrs. Hazeltine where her husband was. She said she did not know, and asked what he wanted with her husband.

"If I catch him," said the drunken blackguard, "I'll cut his damned black heart out of him, and give it to you, madam, if you don't take care."

If this statement is denied—and I confess that if I lived remote from Kansas I would hardly credit it—I will forward affidavits of every assertion I have made, or may yet make, about the Governor.

Shannon and his posse entered Mr. Walker's house in the forenoon, and remained there several hours.

Gov. Shannon was engaged in stealing private property all the next day.

A party of these men, who traveled within sight of the Governor's posse, stole a horse from Mrs. Barber's house—Mrs. Barber, the widow of the martyr of Lawrence. They said they were told by the Governor to take them.

They have dispersed one or two companies of Free State men—all working for mutual protection on one man's farm—and as soon as their orders were obeyed, guerrillas have come along and stolen the property of the squatters.

Capt. John Brown, Jr., from New York—not O. C. Brown, as I stated in my letter from Prairie City—was a victim to this system of military protection.

He collected a company of nearly two hundred armed men, and drove two parties of Missourians, South Carolinians and Georgians out of the Territory. They had come over, it was boasted, for the purpose of "subduing" and robbing the Northern emigrants in the neighborhood of Oswawaldmie.

The military came along and requested Brown to disperse his force. He told them why he had organized and agreed to disband his forces if the troops would protect the settlers. He disbanded them on the same evening he was surprised and captured by a guerrilla force. He will be recaptured before a week is over, or a bloody battle fought in attempting to release him.

The house of Mrs. Barber was not protected by the memory of her husband's untimely fate. Gov. Shannon searched it from top to bottom. One box only was not opened, a screen protected it. "Gov. Shannon," said a gentleman in the house, "that box is Mrs. Barber's. She put her clothes in it before she went East, after her husband was murdered. I don't want it opened; but, if you insist on it, I'll break it open!" Gov. Shannon, drunk as he was, felt the sarcasm, and the box was not opened.

Let me tell one instance of girlish shrewdness and courage. Three men who came behind Gov. Shannon and his swelling guard, went up to Mr. Walker's poney, which was picketed out near a neighbor's house, and were about to take him off. The girl ran out and put her arms around the poney's neck, and declared it was her poney, and they should not have it. They tried to pull her off, but she held fast, and wept and screamed until they desisted. She said she knew if they learned it was Mr. Walker's poney, they would steal it, therefore she said it was hers, to keep it for her friend. Her name is Dorothy Fooms, she is about ten years old.

Yesterday a congregation assembled near Hickory Point, to worship God in a log cabin, on the premises. A guerrilla party of six mounted men suddenly surrounded the house: I do not know whether they were aware of the fact that a congregation was assembled there, or whether they had come for the law and order purpose of robbing the squatter in whose cabin it had met.

Whatever their purpose was, they failed to execute it.

The men rushed out, drew their revolvers, and succeeded in capturing four magnificent horses. They were stolen property. The prisoners were disarmed and then discharged. We have the church militant in Kansas. Our boys call their rides Beecher's bibles.

In a recent number of the Border Times, published at Westport, Missouri, the Editors say Hon. M. Oliver, addressed the citizens of that place, at the Harris House, last Saturday evening. His subject was the affairs of Kansas.

Mr. O., is a good speaker, and his friends were much pleased with his address.

"He dealt with Howard and Sherman, the Abolition spies, and sworn traitors to their God and country, with gloves on, and exposed their treachery and duplicity to the public in a glaring manner. In Mr. Oliver the South has a true friend and faithful champion."

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

We glean the following mining news from the Ontonagon Miner, of the 31st of May:

NORWICH MINE.—The product of mass and barrel copper from this mine, for the month of April, was over 11 tons, and for May will exceed 12 tons.

From the Circular of Dupee Perkins & Sayles, under date of May 15, we extract the following:

MINES.—The transactions for the past four weeks have been mainly confined to Minnesota, Rockland and Lake Superior. The navigation of Lake Superior is now open.

PITTSBURGH AND BOSTON (CLIFF).—A few transfers have been made at $220 to $230 per share. $235 now offered, and no considerable number of shares can be purchased at $240. The yield for March was 145 tons, and for April 151 tons, making for the four months 541 tons, 545 tons, against 479 tons for the same time in 1855.

MINESOTA.—This mine produced in March 165 tons, against 115 tons in March, 1855, making 477 tons for three months to April 1st, against 291 tons for the corresponding time last year. The stock is held firmly at $23, showing an advance of $13 during the past month.

ISLE ROYALE.—The latest dates from Porage Lake are to the first week in April. The mine continues to yield as largely as was anticipated in the last Annual Report, and will stand third in amount of shipments for 1856.

COPPER FALLS.—The Mines produced in March 134 tons, and about 18 tons in April. The yield continues mainly from stamp-work, which is cleaned to a higher per centage than any other mine on the Lake.

There was a large amount of copper at Ontonagon, awaiting shipment, and considerable quantities are daily arriving, but, owing to the want of facilities, there have been no shipments below during the week.

To the Irish Citizens.

A few months hence and you will be called upon to decide a question which has been absorbing the public mind for the last nine months, from every point, north, south, east and west of the Western Hemisphere. This question is to you of vital importance, and let me beg of you if you value your liberty and your lives, to give it serious consideration. Hear me!

On the 6th day of November next, a general election takes place, when the graves of your murdered fathers in Skibbereen and Skull will be opened up, to be eye witnesses of your conduct. Of course before that day, then you will behold the banner of civil and religious liberty floating gaily on the wings of heaven, in all its power and magnificence. On the opposite side you behold the filthy flag of the coward and traitor, dashing its emblems of fold and folds of innocent blood. Yes, on the one side you behold republicanism in all its beauty, with green and gold, while the spirit of Washington pommels on you a solemn benediction! On the other side you behold the flag of the coward and traitor, dashing its emblems of fold and folds of innocent blood. CUSTOM HOUSE.—A large number of hands are busily engaged in excavating for the foundation of the Government Building, and the work will now be prosecuted vigorously.

"THE DECLINE OF CATHOLICISM."—In Austria there are more than three and a half million Protestants. In France there are many Protestants, who are protected by law, and the annual Papal revenue has sunk, since the Revolution, from $30,000,000 to about $30,000,000. In Sardinia the King has gone steadily onward in the reformation of Papal abuses—maintaining his way at the risk of excommunication, and granting religious liberty to all denominations. In Tuscany much dissension has long existed. In Naples the King has long resisted the Jesuits, and shows some independence of the Vatican. In Spain, the waning of Rome's power is unmistakable, and the Government has effectually confiscated the conventual property. In the Canadas, the Valley of the Mississippi the Florida, Texas, it has succeeded in the reformation of Papal abuses—maintaining his way at the risk of excommunication, and granting religious liberty to all denominations. In Tuscany much dissension has long existed. In Naples the King has long resisted the Jesuits, and shows some independence of the Vatican. In Spain, the waning of Rome's power is unmistakable, and the Government has effectually confiscated the conventual property. TELEGRAPH.

Congressional.

In the Senate on the 11th inst., Mr. Bright, having returned, Mr. Stewart resigned the office of President pro tem, and Mr. Bright, was again elected.

The chair then laid before the Senate the resolutions of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in regard to the assault on Mr. Sumner and they were read.

M. Butler said they contained a fore-gone conclusion, because they pronounced judgement before the subject had been investigated.

He called it an insulting mockery for the Legislature to ask them to act upon it after passing judgement. He would say no more now but moved to lay them on the table agreed to.

In the House the Speaker laid before the house the message from the President in regard to the resolution calling for information relative to privateering by the powers of a report.

More about the Explosion.

The boilers of the Steamship which exploded at Longueuil on the St. Lawrence on the 10th inst., were blown an immense distance, and the wharf and everything in the vicinity completely shattered. The train had just arrived and the boat was full of passengers. A child was blown from the arms of its mother in to the air. The number killed is estimated at 20, and it is reported that 30 are still unaccounted for.

Adler & Newbauer.

The Steamship Africa sailed from New York for Liverpool on the 11th with 179 passengers and $94,400 in specie.

Aid For Kansas.

Boston has contributed $10,000 to aid the Free State settlers in Kansas. Josiah Quincy gave $500.

From California.

California dates to the 24th of May have been received.

King, the proprietor of the San Francisco Bulletin, had been assassinated, in consequence of which there was great excitement among the Americans.

Nicaragua.

The latest intelligence from Nicaragua is, that Walker's prospects are unchanged, but the troops are suffering terribly from cholera.

Fillmore Declined.

There was a rumor, in New York, yesterday, that J. R. Fillmore declines the nomination for the Presidency, and avows himself in favor of a Northern conservative candidate.
